HOME CLUBS RALLY HERE JUNE 28

"Our Town"

by J. B. WHITE

We have been considerably intrigued by the sudden rush on the part of big business organizations to proclaim the virtues of the American Constitution and champion the cause of the state's rights. This same or smaller interests, also loudly proclaim the doctrine of state sovereignty whenever it so happens that it is to their monetary benefit to do so.

We have also found it amusing to observe the "eminent" statesmen of both parties, who widely proclaim their loyalty to the soverignty of the states and urge the necessity of keeping them powerful. They never the less, seldom fail to come to the front when the federal government is passing funds, and so far as we know, rarely miss an opportunity to bellow for federal aid to citizens of their state who happen to meet with misfortune of any kind.

These observations are made without intending to throw any aspersions upon the undoubted soundness of the opinion that a nation as vast as the United States must, if it expects to continue, permit as much local self-government under the auspices of the states as possible. Nor would we deride our constitution which is in a distinct degree the safeguard of liberty and freedom of our people.

The point is, however, that many politicians and business men proclaim the United States Constitution when it is to their selfish interest to hide behind the document, and in the next breath prate about states rights. People ought to pay very little attention to arguments advanced by those shifting advocates of their own self interest.

The young people of Milam county should be taught the fundamental principles of their government. No chance should be taken that they grow up without learning to appreciate the vital factors which formed this Union.

I am afraid that native Americans take this for granted. Because they have been satisfied with their government, and because they understand the theories of our governmental system, they take it for granted that all youngsters will, somehow inherit a reverence for, and an understanding of popular government as it was planned for this country.

The duties of a man or woman as a voter should be carefully impressed upon all. Too often there is a tendency on the part of all of us to vote carlessly, and yet if our government is to succeed permanently, it must rest, fundamentally upon the belief that the average voter will be moved by sound motives in casting his ballot. Are our young men being acquainted with this?

More important is the ideal public official. Those who aspire to office should understand that they represent the people, that their deeds are supposed to be for the interests of the people and that their constant endeavor will be to serve the public interest as distinguished from their own, or a group, interest. Very often, we have to admit, the professional office holder has not reached this ideal, and it is important that the young people of to-day who will furnish the officials of tomorrow, should at least be encouraged in learning of the ideal.

There will come a time in the history of this republic when a public official who betrays his trust will be denounced with more vehemence than a soldier who deserts his comrades in battle. Not only must his conduct be free from wrongful acts, but it must be, like Caesar's wife, above suspicion. The breath of scandal that lurks around a man in public office may occasionally be without cause, but more often it is entirely justified.

The officials we have will measure up to the standard of public morality that is demanded by the voters. They will never be better than the standard set by the people and should be expelled when worse. The voter has not the right to expect blameless public men when he is always guilty of expecting a little extra consideration for himself, or his interests. The reform of public life which we hear about, is certain to begin with the righteous and aroused wrath of the electorate.

MUSIC IS CREDIT IN HIGH SCHOOL

The letter below is self explanatory. This move on the State Department of Education to accept the music work of the Cameron High School as an affiliated Credit under the direction of Francis Cox is a tribute to him and the grade of work that he is doing with his pupils as well as a tribute to the pupils themselves for the work they are doing:

Mr. E. A. Perrin,
Superintendent of Schools,
school recommends that credit be granted, without the submission of material, in Music (Band), 1 unit.

The supervisor who visited your

Very truly yours,
J. W. O'Banion,
Director of Supervision.

The significance of this letter is that affiliation in two years of band music is granted in the school without going through that long drawn out process of submitting an exhibit to the State Department of Education for inspection.

The Cameron school has employed Mr. Francis Cox as music director on a full time basis. Music will be taught regularly five days a week as are all other subjects. It not only carries credit for graduation, but has college entrance credit as well.

Heretofore music has been carried on under Mr. Cox independent of the school on a tuition basis paid directly to Mr. Cox by his various pupils.

However, through the fine corporation of the City Council and the school board his salary will be paid in the future through these two organizations and there will be no charge of individual tuition. This applies only to those taking band music under the direction of Mr. Francis Cox.

Sincerely yours,
E. A. Perrin.

Other Services Rendered by Cameron Merchants

Local business men tell us that many people in buying consider only one factor in trading—the price. Losing sight entirely of the importance of quality and without appreciating the services rendered by the merchants in Cameron some people glance through a catalog and snap at "bargains." After paying the parcel post, insurance and waiting days for the merchandise they do not come out as well as they imagined.

The Herald has never appealed to its readers to trade at home merely for "patriotic" reasons. It has never blamed any person for buying what is needed as cheaply as possible, although it has attempted to demonstrate that local merchans deserve as much consideration as a stray catalog. To stay in business Cameron merchants must meet outside competition but it is obviously unreasonable to expect them to do more than this.

Local merchants very often deliver merchandise on credit but we know of few mail order houses that run many charge accounts in Cameron. Local merchants guarantee their wares giving you many money back guarantees, but we know of very few satisfactory price adjustments effected through the mails. Local merchants give an adequate

Miss Gwayne Shipp Becomes Bride of Gene Knipp At Quiet Home Wedding Here Thursday June 20

On Thursday morning, June 20, at 9 o'clock, Miss Gwayne Shipp and Gene Knipp of this city were united in marriage at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Alma Shipp.

A pretty setting for the ceremony was an arch of yellow marigolds and asparagus at the French doors, where the couple entering the room together, were met by Rev. J. Coy Williams, pastor of the local Methodist church who officiated.

The bride, who is a blonde, was very pretty in her pink crepe frock with white accessories. On her shoulder she wore a showered corsage of Madame Butterfly roses and baby blue Peruvian lillies. For something old she wore a bracelet of Mrs. Gene Smith, for something new, a handkerchief, and for something borrowed, a wrist watch.

In the living room tall baskets of marigolds stood and in the dining room the buffet was banked with marigolds and asparagus. Following the ceremony, the guests were invited into the dining room where Miss Winonah Slaughter presided at the punch bowl and Miss Verna Beth Beard over the coffee service. The two tiered heart shaped wedding cake on which a miniature bride stood in the middle, centered the dining table, over which a lace cloth was spread, The cake was cut by the bride and served. Yellow tapers wer eburning in crystal candle holders at each end of the dining table.

The young couple are well known in Cameron. Sh egraduated from Yoe High School here in 1934, and he graduated in 1933. Mr. Knipp was outstanding in athletics, especially in football. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. Knipp, Chatman, Texas. At present he is employed with the Schuhmacher wholesale company of this city.

Sunday School Lesson

By HENRY-RADCLIFFE

MOSES THE LEADER

International Sunday School Lesson for July 7, 1935.

GOLDEN TEXT: "Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord."—Psalm 33:12.

(Lesson text: Ex. 24:3-8, 12-18)

The career of Moses is one of much romance and interest. As a great patriot, organizer and leader, lawgiver and always a devout follower of God, his life stands out among the ancient leaders of the Jewish people.

Our readers are familiar with the famine which drove Jacob and his followers into Egypt, where the providential power of Joseph enabled them to be saved. The Israelites were welcomed into the new land and treated with consideration and favor by the rulers. With the passage of generations a new dynasty arose. The growing numbers and increased prosperity of the Hebrews caused some fear and envy and a policy of oppression was adopted toward them.

The Hebrews were subject to many exactions and were allowed to exist only as slaves. They were forced to labor in the construction of public works and their condition became very pitiable and miserable. At length the ruling Pharoah, in an effort to prevent the increase of this race, decreed the death of all male infants. At this time, Moses was born and his mother, Jechebed, managed to save his life by arousing the pity and love of an Egyptian princess.

Raised in the Egyptian court, with his own mother serving as nurse, Moses had every advantage which the advanced civilization of Egypt could furnish. He received the best education available in his day, and was trained in the arts and schemes of the Egyptians. Although his prospects for advancement and power were excellent, Moses never forgot that he was a Hebrew and, possibly due to his mother, he remained firm in his worship and fidelity to the God of his fathers.

One day Moses found an Egyptian mistreating one of the Israelites. Acting upon an impulse which was in response to his genuine feeling, Moses intervened and killed the aggressor, hiding his body in the sand, another example of trying to accomplish good through evil which exacted its penalty. The next day, when Moses tried to intercede between two Hebrews engaged in a difficulty, one of them referred to his violent act the day before. Fearing detection and punishment (favorable commentary upon the Egyptian of that period—that a prince should be punished for killing an ordinary man) Moses fled to Midian, where he remained forty years, during which time he was married.

Our lesson tells us of the summons which came to Moses calling upon him to return to Egypt and free his people. We should not question the fact that in everyday life now similar divine summons come to man. The difficulty lies in the fact that so few are able to recognize and respond to such opportunities. As Elizabeth Barrett Browning wrote: "Earth's crammed with heaven,

And every common bush afire with God;
But only he who sees, takes off his shoes,
The rest sit around it and pluck blackberries."

Moses, like many other men in similar positions, sought to evade the responsibility assigned to him. He made excuses, the first was that he was not able to accomplish the task, but God promised his own assistance. The second was that he did not know how to tell the Israelites who had sent him and God gave him a name by which he was to be known. Then Moses declared that the Israelites would not believe him, and God gave him two signs to confirm his divine authority. Then, as the fourth and last excuse, Moses complained that he was not eloquent, whereupon God gave him the mouthpiece.

The story of Moses' mission in Egypt is fairly well known. Time and again the permission was given for the Israelites to leave only to be withdrawn. Ten plagues were sent to make Pharaoh allow the children of Israel to depart, the final one being the death of all first born from the crown Prince to the lowest beast. Instructions were given the Hebrews as to how they could prevent the death angels visiting their own homes, and it was in commemoration of this event that the Passover, the most important annual feast of the Jews in later centuries, came to be observed.

The story of the flight of the Hebrews, the pursuit by the Egyptians, the miraculous crossing of the Red Sea, and the destruction of the pursuing army tell a story which is fairly familiar. At Sinai, Moses received the revelation of divine law known as the Ten Commandments, composed of two tables, one giving man's obligation to God and the other his social duties to his fellows.

The Jews were not constant in spirit and devotion to Jehovah, however, for during Moses' absence they persuaded Aaron to manufacture the golden calf which they worshipped. As a result, Moses and the Levites slew three thousand of them and then implored God not to desert them but to give them another opportunity. Spies sent out to view the promised land returned with unfavorable reports, but only Joshua and Caleb of the twelve had enough faith in God to recommend the attempt to conquer.

Moses never reached the promised land, although he viewed it from afar. As a punishment for disobedience the Israelites were kept in the wilderness for another generation and it was a new generation which finally made their way toward the plain of Moab, where Moses delivered his farewell address, given us in the Book of Deuteronomy. This is a very eloquent utterance and marked the passage of the great leader.

Miss Gertrude Luce Becomes Bride Of Mr. Arlan of Thrall In Gause Ceremony

The marriage of Miss Gertrude Luce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. T. Godfrey, to Mr. Arlan of Thrall, took place June eighth at the Baptist Church, Rev. G. B. Kendall of Clifton officiating. Mrs. Halla Harkins of Taylor sang "O Promise Me" and "I Love You Truly," preceding the ceremony, accompanied by Mrs. Robert Goode, who also played the wedding marches. The altar, banked with ferns and smilax, was lighted by many tapers in tall standards. Baskets of pink gladiolas and rainbow roses were arranged against the green background.

The bride, given in marriage by her father was gowned in sheer white crepe made on long lines. Her short veil was caught with a spray of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of brides roses.

Miss Mary Luce served her sister as maid of honor and Miss Alfa Earl Whisenant of Houston, a cousin of the bride, was bridesmaid. Both were dressed alike in green organdy and wore big picture hats of natural colored straw. Each carried colonial bouquets. Walker Agnew of Luling was best man, and Merton Bowling was usher.

After a short wedding trip the couple will be at home at Thrall, Texas.

TURNER-BURNETT

A wedding of much interest to many friends of Milam county was that of Miss Lois Mildred Burnett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Julian Burnett of Jones Prairie to Mr. Reese Monroe Turner of Houston, which took place June 23rd at 9:30 a. m. at the bride's home, Rev. Nual Clark reading the ring ceremony.

The young couple pledged their marriage vows in a setting to which flowers and ferns contributed their charms. Mrs. Elbert Martin sang the wedding song "I Love You Truly," accompanied by Mrs. R. O. Harper at the piano. Mrs. Harper who also officiated in Mr. and Mrs. Burnett's wedding twenty-six years ago played Lohengrins's wedding march as the minister entered the living room followed by the bride and groom.

Only relatives and close friends were present.

The bride wore a tailored ensemble of white silk crepe with all white accessories. She wore a shoulder corsage of pink rosebuds and fern.

Mrs. Turner has spent most of her life in Jones Prairie and after graduating from Yoe High school, enrolled at S. W. T. S. T. C., San Marcos, Texas, where she received her permanent certificate. Since then she has taught school four years in Milam county, serving three years at Maysfield and one at Pin Oak. She has accepted the assistant's place at Belmena for the ensuing year.

Mr. Turner, son of Mr. and Mrs. Arvis Turner, after graduating from Yoe High took up studies in the East, studying law two years in the Methodist University in Evansville, Indiana. He spent a year in Raritan Arsenal at Metuchen, New Jersey. He then was a student of the ministery at Rutgers University, New Brunswick, New Jersey and at the same time was pastor of the Methodist church in Carteret, N. J. where he served two years.

Mr. Turner has returned to Texas to make it his home. He is now located in Houston where he has bought over the Main Club Cafe which is located on South Main.

The bride and groom left immediately after the ceremony for a short honeymoon after which time they will make their home in Houston.

SHOWER FOR MISS MILDRED BURNETT

Miss Mildred Burnett, whose marriage to Reese Turner of Houston took place June 23rd, was complimented Tuesday afternoon at a miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Davis Black, Mrs. Elbert Martin, Mrs. Dick Harper, Mrs. Robert Glenn and Mrs. Jack Jamison at the Jones Prairie school house.

Summer flowers were arranged about the room where the guests gathered. A white and green color theme was carried out. Games and contests furnished the entertainment.

The gifts were presented in a very clever way. A telegram together with a trunk was received by the bride from the groom asking her to unpack his clothes and hang up so as not to be wrinkled for the ceremony.

The brde opened the trunk to find men's clothes and underneath were the gifts which were opened and admired by all.

Guests from out of the community were: Mrs. R. K. Anderson and Mrs. John Gamble of Cameron, Mrs. J. A. Rice of Brownwood, Winnie Bailey of Calvert, Mrs. Conley Banks of Arkansas, and Mrs. Monte Owens of Dallas. From Maysfield were: Mrs. Tom Linam, Hub Massengale, Gail Newton, Hubert Atkinson, Jim Barmore, Roy Newton, J. H. Ireland, and Elliott Hollingsworth.

Friends were served ice cream with individual cakes iced in green scrolls tied in green ribbons reading "Mildred and Reese June 23, 1935," served as plate faors.

Miss Burnett was then presented with a bride's book in which six guests had registered.

NO INTERRUPTION of YOUR GAS SERVICE as Texas Streams Burst Banks!

With torrential flood waters swirling at many points between you and the gas wells, Lone Star Gas System again has met the threat of the elements. Bridging the gap between the gas wells and your gas appliances, this dependable system has conquered the hazard and kept your service uninterrupted.

The greatest and most widespread floods in the history of this company have threatened the gas pipe lines at many points. As the waters rushed on over the country-side, men stood by these lines day and night ready for any break. While bridges went down and roads were washed out and traffic was halted, the gas lines held intact.

This dependable service is not an accident. It is due to a quarter of a century of planning and huge expenditures of money. Seven pipe line bridges across swollen streams, heavy steel pipe laid deep in the ground, a well trained organization, are among the facilities which have made this gas system able to meet the unprecedented flood conditions.

The ability of your gas company to serve you during emergencies is, after all, the supreme test of service. The significant fact is that the facilities and organization necessary to keep your service constantly dependable in such an emergency must stand by throughout every day of the year waiting your instant call.

Miss Mittie Lou Howard Becomes Bride of Randolph Williams in Ceremony At Baptist Church Sunday Morning June 23

The wedding season is far from being terminated although June is nearly spent. The past week brought a number of weddings. One of state as well as local interest was solemnized Sunday morning June 23rd at the first Baptist church at 9 o'clock when Miss Mittie Lou Howard became the bride of Randolph Williams of Hempstead, Rev. N. D. Timmerman reading the ring ceremony.

Decorations

The altar was adorned with beautiful plumosa and asparagus ferns that lent a background of greenery intermingled with table and pedestal baskets of pink roses for the altar setting for the nuptial vows. White maline bows marked the pews reserved for the family and close friends.

Bridal Attendants

John Pierce, Leo Mohler and Billie Clark, in palm beach suits, ushered guests to their seats, and also acted as groomsmen.

Wedding Music

Miss Ida Byrd Mayfield, beautifully gowned in blue lace with small hat and pink corsage, presided at the piano. Miss Frances Hobson, attired in pink lace with blue corsage, rendered a violin number, with piano accompainment, "Ah, Sweet Mystery of Life." Ray Burke sang "I Love You Truly."

Entrance of Bridal Party

Mendelsohn's Wedding march was used for the processional. Miss Hilda Burke, in a pink lace costume, wearing a small hat and blue corsage, entered with Billie Clark and took their place among the beautiful pink and green decorations at the altar. Miss Maurine Leonard, attractively dressed in pink lace, with small hat and blue corsage, entered with John Pierce, and joined the preceeding couple. Miss Pauline Collins of Waco was pretty in a dainty blue lace costume, small hat and blue corsage, was maid of honor, and came in alone. Mrs. Clifton Howard of Waco, sister-in-law of the bride, was stylishly dressed in blue lace with close fitting hat and pink corsage, was matron of honor, and came in with Leo Mohler.

The two little flower girls, little Marjorie Ann Denson and Rebecca Howard, in pink and blue costumes, wore garlands of pink and blue daisies on their arms, and dainty little two year old daughter of Mrs. Earnest Howard, Florence Ann, was ring bearer, and wore a beruffled dress of pink, bore a white lilly for the ring and preceeded the bride to the altar.

Entrance of Bride

The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Clifton Howard, of Waco. She was beautiful in a white dress of floor length, small white hat and corsage of white bridal roses, and was met at the altar by the bridegroom with best man, Mallory McDonald of Houston and took the bridal vows. "I Dream of Love" was softly played during the ceremony. Lohengrin's wedding march was used for the recessional.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Howard of Cameron; was reared here and attended Baylor University after completing high school in Cameron. She is popular with a large circle of friends and was a popular co-ed at Baylor.

Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Howard, parents of the bride, entertained with a midday dinner for more than fifty friends. At this time a wedding cake was cut, and many symbols afforded much pleasure for the merry group of young people present.

After the wedding dinner the bride donned her going away gown, a cinnamon brown dress with accessories to match and left for Hempstead where they will make their home.

The groom is an excellent young business man who travels for a large wholesale firm with headquarters at Hempstead..

Mrs. Ernest Howard presided over the bride-book for guests at the home where guests viewed the many wedding gifts. The bride was recipient of a number of social courtesies previous to the wedding.

A number of friends attended the wedding, coming from Waco, Rosebud, Maysfield and other places. Among them were Mr. and Mrs. Clifton Howard and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Collins and daughter, Miss Pauline, of Waco.

HONORING MISS HOWARD

Honoring Miss Mittie Lou Howard a future bride of Randolph Williams, Misses Maurine Leonard and Pauline Collins of Waco were joint hostesses for a buffet supper Saturday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Slaughter.

Pretty pink roses adorned the home throughout. The dining table was laid with a dainty lace cover, centered with a bowl of pink roses. Pink burning tapers cast their soft glow over the setting where a dainty collation was served. Following the supper the wedding party gathered at the Baptist church for rehearsal for the wedding ceremony.

Mrs. Slaughter and daughter, Miss Winonah Slaughter, assisted in the evening's pleasures at home.

Nervous, Weak Woman Soon All Right

"I had regular shaking spells from nervousness," writes Mrs. Cora Sanders, of Paragould, Ark. "I was all run-down and cramped at my time until I would have to go to bed. After my first bottle of Cardui, I was better. I kept taking Cardui and soon I was all right. The shaking quit and I did not cramp. I felt worlds better. I gave Cardui to my daughter who was in about the same condition and she was soon all right."

PITTS RULED IN.

LIVESTOCK TAKES MILE.

OWENS MAY IMPROVE.

PITTSBURGH PIRATES CLIMB.

SCHMELING VS. BRADDOCK.

BASEBALL NOTES.

Judge K. M. Landis has removed all doubt as to whether Alabama Pitts will be allowed to play minor league baseball by ruling Pitts a regular member of the Albany club. Following the earlier decision of President W. G. Brabham, of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues, in which Pitts, who has been doing a stretch in Sing Sing, was declared ineligible as a minor league player, General Manager Johnny Evers of the Albany International League club, appealed to Landis for the final say-so in the case. The above decision was made by Landis last week.

Included in the Landis decision was the following clause:"Pitts will be allowed to play on condition that a new contract be executed by the Albany club and Pitts containing a covenant that during the year 1935 Pitts shall appear only in regular league games and shall not appear in or at exhibition games, this condition being imposed because it is distinctly in Pitt's interest that mere notoriety be not exploited and capitalized."

It is felt that Landis' decision which came as no surprise to many, was based largely on the recommendation of Warden Lewis E. Lawes as to Pitt's splendid behavior while in Sing Sing. Lawes' recommendation is borne out in the realization that the star athlete must have been a model prisoner to have several years taken off his sentence for good behavior. Pitts' attitude both in his actions and published statements have not been that of a convict, and because of that attitude, the whole of the sporting world has been drawn to his side. Landis' decision seems to have pleased all concerned.

Although Jack Lovelock won easily, the "Mile of the Century" proved to be a big disappointment to the 25,000 spectators who witnessed the event, feature of Princeton's second annual all-star invitation meet. The large majority of spectators had come to the meet expecting a new world mark in the mile. Glenn Cunningham, holder of all world records for the classic distance, was a disappointing third, finishing behind Lovelock and Bill Bronthron. In other main events Bill Graber defeated Keith Brown in the pole vault. Chuck Hornbustel captured the 880 race, and Raymond Sears of Butler University captured the two mile run Sam Allen, Oklahoma Baptist University, came within a tenth of a second of the the world's 120-yard high hurdle mark with a performance of 14.3.

Coach Larry Snyder of Ohio State believes that 9.3 seconds is the fastest that the 100 yard dash will be run in the present generation. He is also of the opinion that Jesse Owens, one of his own proteges, will be the man first to reach the mark. In an apologetic manner, Snyder said in a recent interview that Owens will clip the 1-10th second off the world mark when he improves his present technique. According to Snyder, Owens, who recently broke three world's track marks and tied another in one afternoon, has a lot to learn in his various track and field activities. If Owens is that much at fault after his above mentioned afternoon's performance, we are wondering just how far he will go when Snyder is able to develop him as an example of perfect action on the track.

It is interesting to note the rise of the Pittsburgh Pirates who in the past several weeks have made themselves contenders for leadership honors in the National League, or at any rate very near so. However, in the past five years, the Bucs have invariably let down those who have backed them with poor season performances in spite of the hitting of Paul Waner, et al. This season, the Pirates as usual were picked by many to be leading contenders in the senior circuit. For the first six weeks the Pittsburgh boys had a tough time in keeping a 500 pace in the race, in spite of rookie Cy Blanton's surprising number of wins. The past three weeks, however, have seen the Pirates take advantage of splendid pitching at the hands of Bush, Lucas, Swift and Blanton, and heavy hitting from the bats of the Waners, Vaughan, and rookie Pep Young to gratify sports writers who felt that the Pirates would not let them down another year.

Max Schmeling, former world heavyweight champion, who admits he was the most surprised person in the world at the outcome of the Baer-Braddock bout, is eager to fight Braddock in September for a new shot at the title. Although Braddock is under contract to defend the title at Madison Square Garden, and regardless of the fact that Walter Rothburg, Hamberg promoter, insists upon a Braddock-Schmeling fight in Europe, the chances for a Braddock-Schmeling fight here seem excellent. Schmeling refused to fight Braddock this spring because he didn't believe that Braddock was good enough. Now Max admits his mistake and is more than eager to take on Jimmy.

Diamond Pick Ups.—Dale Alexander, Kansas City first baseman, recently tied the modern record set by Lou Gehrig in 1932 by poling out 4 consecutive home runs in a single game off Minneapolis pitchers. . . . He had a chance to make it five in the ninth but hit into a double play . . . Leon Chagnon, starting his first game in two years, allowed the Reds only two hits in eight innings, yet was defeated because the Giants, his teammates, could not touch Paul Derringer's airtight pitching. . . . The Chicago White Sox recently secured twenty hits off Washington pitchers but lost the game by five runs. . . . The Washington hurlers have been so inefficient on the recent Western swing that for the first half of the tour the club played just .500 ball in spite of the fact that the team's hitters, including the pitchers with several extra base hits and homers, have set a new season high for hits and would hit one hundred round-trippers. tional League continues its year after year reputation as the number one home run team of organized baseball. . . . Manager Guy Sturdy of the Orioles predicted before the season started that his outfielders alone would hit on ehundred round-trippers. . . . The trio, Puccinelli, Abernathy, and Barton have already hit in the neighborhood of seventy homers with the season still young. . . . Along with Mayo, third baseman, the three are among the first five homer hitters in the International League.

A Few More Innings—Rabbit Maranville, at forty-three, is the oldest active players in the majors.

Six American League players have Dutch blood in them. They are Doc Cramer of the Athletics, Jake Powell of the Nats; Bill Knickerbocker and Walter Johnson of the Indians; Russ Van Atta of the Browns and Jimmy DeShong of the Yankees. . . . In an interview at Chicago, Joe Cronin called Bill Dickey the most dangerous batter in the American League. . . . All the others will take Foxx any day. . . . Instead of pulling in all of his infielders to cut off a run at the plate, Bucky Harris brings in only the right side of the infield with a right hand batter, figuring that it will lessen the chances of a loop hit over short stop or third base . . . He figures that if the ball is hit in that direction on the ground it will be hard enough to permit the fielders to have time to make the peg home. . . With left handers it works just the opposite way.

follow up and repair service on their sales but as far as we know, no mail order house has ever sent a man to Cameron to see why its product is not doing all that they said it would.

There is much more to a trade than the price. Quality, accommodation, service and personal consideration come with the goods bought from Cameron merchants. There is no price for these in a catalog because a mail order house cannot deliver them with the goods—it takes a Cameron store to do so.

Bad Housing in Milam County

It would probably surprise many residents of Milam county to be told that one-third of the population of the United States is living in dwellings and neighborhoods "of a character to injure the health, endanger the safety and morals, and interfere with the normal life of their inhabitants.

This is the verdict of the Housing Division of the PWA which has issued a report, with supporting details, that six million non-farm, and five million farm homes are definitely sub-standard, and that the housing conditions are so bad over a great area that they constitute a national emergency.

The report points out that while the situation exists in farm districts as well. Moreover, the conclusion is inescapable, according to Dr. Edith Wood, that the evil is impossible of correction by private enterprise. The Government hopes to embark on a campaign of actual construction, according to Horatio B. Hackett, PWA Director of Housing, not with the idea of supplying the entire need of the country, but rather with the hope to scatter outstanding examples of proper housing projects among the states and thus encourage progress along this important line.

While the readers of the Herald, as stated at the beginning of this article, may not realize the actual conditions that exist in Milam county, we feel sure that a little reflection on their part will convince them that much is needed along housing construction here before our people as a whole will be adequately and properly housed.

The Growth of Cameron

Let's not lose sight of the fact that the growth of Cameron, the public improvements that can be made, and the advantages that will accrue in the way of cultural progress, is dependent absolutely upon the amount of money that stays in Cameron. A city is just like an individual—it is the money saved that makes it financially able to afford better things.

The money that the citizens of Cameron make every month is an asset to the city, but if every cent was sent away for the purchase of supplies and commodities, we would all be broke in two months. The amount of money that circulates in Cameron from one citizen to another and so on, is the money that increases values and permits trade to prosper.

The above statements being the truth, and we have never found anyone who would deny them, why isn't it worth the while of every good citizen to think seriously upon this vital question and resolve to spend his money in Cameron whenever possible? The writer of this column does not expect the impossible; neither do the business men of Cameron.

Cameron business men are in business to make money, but they have sense enough to know that the cheaper they sell goods the more of them they will sell. Big fortunes are made by large volumes of business—not by enormous profits on small volume. The local merchants know this as well as anybody else and most of them are trying to attract trade in volume.

To do this they must mark their goods at attractive prices. They must handle dependable merchandise. They must, and they do, stand behind the things they sell. The bigger their business grows, the cheaper they can sell everything they handle. The bigger their businesses grow the more men they employ, the better salaries they pay, and the larger Cameron grows.

Now the average citizen, in any line, is interested in bigger local business because that means more economic openings, more workers needed, higher salaries, and better living conditions. The success of one means the success of all. A city grows and prospers as its businesses grow and prosper.

We do not ask any reader of this column to pay a dollar extra to buy anything offered for sale in Cameron. What we ask the buyer to do is to realize before buying anything that there are two classes of merchandise, that put to sell for a cheap price and that put to sell as the best of quality. The former is uncertain, apt to be satisfactory and just as apt to fail. The latter meets many elaborate tests designed to show its worth and when finally sold to the customer is backed by a money-back guarantee.

Local merchants, as a rule, have to handle quality merchandise because they have to depend on the continued trade of their customers for success. One false sale, one worthless article, will ruin a store's reputation with a customer. That is why local merchants guarantee quality that means "satisfaction or your money back."

War Danger Abounds.

The people of Milam county are probably intensely interested in the question of future war, although to some extent unconcerned over the fate that looms for other peoples.

Generally, we are against war and hope that the United States will avoid fighting and that the world at large will enjoy a long era of peace. The present prospect is not very encouraging. One has only to call attention to the activity of Japan ,the threatened military action of Italy in Africa and the surprising increase in armaments to realize that war exists as an actual danger.

Capable observers express the opinion that the next two years will be vital insofar as the peace of Europe is concerned, apparently believing that if peace can be maintained until 1938 that better times will arrive.

Among others, Kemel Ataturk, the Turkish dictator, thinks that the present danger comes from insincere leaders and urges that the "masses make their own decisions and place the responsibility of leadership in the hands of conscientious persons of high character and morals without delay.

Mustapha Kemel, as he is better known, has something of a military record himself, and has undoubtedly accomplished great reforms in Turkey. He knows what he is talking about and gauges the situation much more accurately than those who assert, that "another war is impossible."

Miss Evangeline Booth believes that "there is too much good in the brain and heart in high places of the world to make another war possible." We would like to believe that she is an accurate reporter, but in view of the realities now existing in the international situation the advice given by the Turkish leader is more practical and might do the world much good if followed.

HEFLEY-DOSSETT, INSURANCE

Automobile Industry Good Farm Customers

The farmer's job used to be keeping the nation's dinner table supplied. During 19[illegible]35 he will work to help supply materials for one million Fords.

Ford dealers point out that the Ford Motor Company will purchase many products of the farm and the forest in order to complete its announced intention to build one million cars this year.

Here are some of the things that will have to be purchased:

3,200,000 pounds of wool requiring 800,000 sheep to produce it will go into upholstery, fldor-coverings, lubricants and anti-rust preparations. The production of glues made from hides, glues made from milk, stearic acid, greases, glycerine, soap chips and 1,500,000 square feet of leather for upholstery will utilize 30,000 cattle. 20,000 hogs will supply lard oil for lubricants, oleic acid and bristles for brushes. The goat will yield 350,000 pounds of goat's hair for the mohair upholstery. This means that farms will shear 87,500 goats. Beeswax is not so much used as it was, but tons of beeswax will be used for electrical imbedding compounds. 2,000,000 industrious honeybees will produce this beeswax.

Every four-door Ford sedan uses 70 pounds of cotton. A million cars will require over 69,000,000 pounds of cotton—25,000,000 pounds in tires; 34,000,000 pounds in batting, cloth, brake linings, battery box, timing gears and safety glass. It will produce 433,000 acres of cotton to furnish this material. The cornfield of corn twice a half a million bushels starch needed to make butyl alcohol and flax fields of used in manufacture. The pounds of fields of will furnish 2,400,000 linseed oil. Even the the Ford will help build 2,500,000 they will furnish which contains of molasses from and shock solvents, anti-freeze of the castor bean will supply 240,000 pounds of castor oil for lacquers and artificial leather.

The forest will make its contribution. 112,000 feet of lumber, mostly for packing purposes and 5,000,000 feet of paper board will be needed. The pitch pine will supply 2,000,000 pounds of turpentine for solvents and paints and adhesives. Rubber trees whose product is used in 203 parts of the Ford car from tires to tops, will supply $5,000 tons of rubber. The cork trees will yield a quarter of a million pounds of cork. A farm industry new to the south will receive an impetus when 728,000 gallons of tung oil is used.

The Ford car is a good customer of the farmer. The farmer helps to build Ford cars just as Ford cars and trucks help to make farming more efficient and convenient. They help each other and Ford dealers point out that both help the country.

Products of Farm and Forest For One Million Fords

The motor car is not a kingdom in itself. It must buy something of nearly everything that is grown at the farm and that is made in other industries. Thousands of farms and industries are feeling a new impetus in business from the scheduled production of more than one million Fords for 1935.

POLITICAL ELECTRIC SERVICE

. . . is knocking at your door!

Shall Your Local Electric Service Become a Federal Political Football?

Unless the Wheeler-Rayburn Bill, now pending in Congress, is defeated your local electric service and rates will be regulated and controlled by political officeholders in Washington.

Instead of private ownership with its local control, local citizenship, local taxpaying, it would be "remote control" by Federal commissions and bureaus.

It would make of the electric industry with its half a million employees, a political football, to be kicked about, with the electric user the loser.

Taxes have already been increased more than a billion and a half dollars during the past twelve months. Additional Federal bureau activities mean even greater tax burdens . . . FOR YOU!

The Wheeler-Rayburn Bill would not only end local regulation and increase cost of government but it would greatly handicap and hinder your local electric company. It would abolish the holding companies which have been one of the most important factors in the building of our excellent record of rate reductions and good service.

Because of the drastic provisions of the Bill many of the local companies would not be able to survive and government ownership would undoubtedly follow. It would be the first step toward national socialism.

As in all such socialistic ventures, the people would pay the bills in higher rates, poor service, or in higher taxes . . . sometimes all three. To create more jobs and bring back better days government must encourage private ownership; investments must be protected; individual rights must not be destroyed.

If you are in accord, you can help by writing to your Senators and Representative in Washington, advising them you are opposed to the Wheeler-Rayburn Bill.

Washington News For Milam County Farmers

From Cameron Herald's Washington Bureau

AAA FACES ATTACKS.

75 PER CENT PARITY.

EDITORS SURPRISED.

FARMERS MUST DECIDE.

Farmers who feel that the AAA has helped increase their farm incomes might as well realize that it is under constant attack and that they must be on their guard all the time in order to prevent losing whatever has been gained.

Critics of the AAA, it seems to us, lose sight of the fact that the prize purpose of the act was to bring about a parity between the prices of farm products and those of industry. To do this it is necessary to reduce industrial prices or raise agricultural prices. The latter effort is the one upon which most effort has been concentrated.

However, it is not possible, perhaps, to accomplish everything thru this attack. Chester C. Davis, in his recent report, points out that farm prices last year were still 25 per cent below the 1910-1929 relationship to industrial prices and warns farmers that further improvement in their income will depend "on the increased activity, income and purchasing power of industrial groups."

The chance that exports might provide additional outlets for agricultural products exists but, it seems is largely dependent upon a willingness on the part of this country to permit other nations who buy from us, to sell us something in order to be able to pay their bills here. The hope that some system will enable us to dump our surplus on the world market at reduced rates is vain, because other nations will retaliate against dumping and probably erect new barriers to protect their domestic producers.

The Brookings Institution has published a commentary on the AAA and it worries some metropolitan newspaper editors to see that the report calls attention to the risk that farmers who get crop benefits "from the government will seek (as in the case of protective tariff and pork barrel appropriations) to retain and enlarge them."

Well, now, isn't that a surprise? All that the big newspaper editors had to do, if they wanted that information, was to read our comment several months ago. It did not require any prophetical sense to know that farmers, like everybody else, would want to keep a cash increase.

The point is, however, that agriculture was bled white in the United States for years and that the depression was caused in a large degree by the absolute bankruptcy of millions of farmers. Moreover, most farmers and political leaders today acknowledge that the processing taxes, which pay the benefits, are an agricultural equivalent to the tariff, and the argument follows that if one is surrendered the other should be abandoned.

Last Thursday, June 20th, Secretary Wallace delivered an address at Harvard University, in which he once more called attention to the choice that must be made by this country.

Mr. Wallace may be wrong in his conclusions as to what the choice should be, but he states the possible courses of action, we think, with commendable fairness: "Are we to take an internationalic path, to lower tariffs and to accept gradually increased imports, in order to restore the old level of exports? Or are we to go in for self-sufficiency, shutting out imports and thereby destroying all hopes of restoring exports? If not either of these paths, can we agree upon a middle path—lowering certain tariffs a little, accepting a modest increase in imports, and restoring exports a little? Or will we delay decision on the issue by using government money to subsidize exports, and thus do with public funds what our private loans did between the 7 years between 1922 and 1929?"

Farmers of Milam county along with those in other sections of the county might as well study up the answers, if they do not know them. The issue is near at hand and a decision must be made in the near future.

Miss Elsie Blaylock, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. B. B. Blaylock of Temple, formerly of Cameron, was married Sunday morning, June 16 at 9:30 o'clock at the Memorial Baptist church to William Hill, with the bride's father reading the ring service.

Much interest was centered around the marriage. The alter was banked with palms and tall baskets of pink gladiolas as a background, lighted with white candles burning in standards at either side of the altar.

White accessories completed her outfit. She carried a white prayer book from which streamers of white satin ribbon, tied with pink sweetheart buds. She was met at the altar by her father and Mr. Hill who was attended by his brother, Earle Hill, as best man.

Immediately after the wedding they left for a short wedding trip, returning to Temple where they will make their home. The bride traveled in a navy blue dress of tailored linen, trimmed in white and wore white and navy blue accessories.

Out of town guests for the wedding were Mr. and Mrs. Marion Morton and son of Dallas, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Hill of Dallas, Misses Helen and Mary Frances Blaylock of Cameron, Miss Ruby Lengert and Miss Weiss McDermott of Cameron.

ROY MABRY WINNER OF ESSAY CONTEST

Roy Mabry, member of the class in vocational agriculture taught by E. D. Parnell, won the prize in the recent essay contest setting forth benefits from the Houston Fat Stock show.

The Cameron team also won the judging contest at the show this spring. The following letter from S. C. Wilson, director has been received in Cameron by Superintendent E. A. Perrin of the schools:

"The state committee has just reported on the Vocational Agriculture high school boys' essay contest on benefits derived from the Houston Fat Stock Show. One of your high school students, Roy Mabry, won the prize, consisting of $7.50, offered by the Houston Fat Stock Show, for one of the best essays.

I want to congratulate you, Roy Mabry and your teacher of vocational agriculture over his success and the success of your school in winning in this contest. COMETS OPEN WITH WIN OVER ROGERS

By CLIFF THOMPSON

The XXXPearl Comets opened the second half of the Cen-Tex race with a win to their credit after defeating the Rogers Eagles with a shut-out game at Cameron Sunday by a score of 7 to 0.

Heine Schottle pitched nine innings of first class base ball, being backed by an errorless team. Thompson was the catcher for the Comets. D. Copeland and Seigler were the batteries for the Eagles. Copeland was relieved in the seventh inning by Bob Guess.

Rogers made 7 hits and 5 errors. The Comets made 13 hits and no errors. Walker, Jackson, Worcester, Scarborough and Ondrej each hit the old apple for a two bagger during the game and Cobb bingled one for three bases.

The Comets club had a meeting Friday night and voted to be a strong contender for first place in the Cen-Tex cup race and do some jam up first class amateur base ball playing for the remainder of the season. They also elected Bill Balhorn field captain, Henderson Walker business manager and Cliff Thompson official scorer. The appointment of Tucker and Leland Stedman as umpires was also approved.

The Comets gave their infield a shake-up to start the new half and this seems to have been a good move. Ondrej was brought in from the out field to play third base and Williams was shifted back to second, his old position. Scarborough from Rockdale an ex-player of the South Milam league, has been recruited to assist the Comets this last half. Etzel and Rosenberg of LaGrange have also been elisted as excellent help in the future in the way of a pitcher and catcher. Rosenberg will be remembered for his display of ability against the Waco Bakers here on June 9.

Sunday June 30 will find the Comets locking horns with the Burlington Bear Cats at Burlington. The 4th day of July Cameron will meet Giddings at Giddings in an exhibition game.

CANADIAN TREATY

Discussions between representatives of Canada and this country are under way in the hope of framing a reciprocal treaty. Inasmuch as the President and the Prime Minister Bennett have the power to conclude treaties without prior reference to legislaive bodies, hopes of successful negotiantons have risen.

SAYS POAGE WILL SEEK CROSS SEAT

This morning paper makes the statement that Congressman O. H. Cross will not be a candidate for re-election. I have had so many calls asking whether Senator W. R. Poage from this district will be a candidate that I feel that the public would appreciate this information.

Senator Poage is today conducting a hearing in Henderson, Texas, as Chairman of the Senate Investigating Committee, but I am sure that Senator Poage expects to be a candidate for Congress in any event, and that the only thing that I know of that would prevent it would be lack of money to make the campaign. He spent all the money he had last year in the short campaign that he made at that time but he feels that he is in a better position to make the race next year than any one else due to his canvass last year. Mr. Poage secured approximately four votes to his opponent's five over the district in a five weeks campaign last year. He will start the race next year with a decided advantage. He is now one of the ranking members in the State Senate, there being but 3 members who have served longer in this body than he has. He began his legislative service nearly 12 years ago.

Since that time he has been the leader of many outstanding activities such as state aid in the payment of highway bonds, state aid for needy school districts and the great Brazos River project.

He is now serving as chairman of the Senate Investigating Committee, and, while he has, personally, often expressed the wish that he might serve a few more years in the State Senate, I am convinced that he has made up his mind to seek larger fields of service at the next election.

I am sending out this information at this time simply because Mr. Poage is not in the city, and I thought that your readers would probably be interested.

Yours very truly,
W. L. Crosthwait, M. D.

Des Moines, Iowa.—Suing his wife for divorce, Carl Woolery says she weighs 215 pounds, beat him with a beer bottle, and added "She has a very bad temper."

WHOSE WORD WILL YOU TAKE FOR BLOWOUT PROTECTION?

Low wheels, larger tires, and the high speeds of today make blowout protection in your tires vital to your safety as never before. Are you accepting exaggerated and unsupported advertising and sales claims—or are you accepting the judgment of men who risk their lives on their tires and know from experience the tire that gives them the greatest blowout protection?

Thirty-three race drivers and their mechanics lined up for the dangerous, gruelling grind of the 500-Mile Race at the Indianapolis Speedway May 30th. Firestone Tires were purchased and used on every one of the thirty-three cars. Not one of the drivers had tire trouble of any kind.

Gum-Dipping is one of the outstanding reasons why Firestone Tires give such amazing performance. By this process every cotton cord is soaked and every strand is insulated with pure liquid rubber, preventing internal friction and heat, the main cause of blowouts. Gum-Dipping is a patented extra process not used in any other make of tire.

Protect your life and the lives of others by equipping your car with Firestone Gum-Dipped High Speed Tires—the safest tires built.

It will be worth your time to read these three questions and their answers:

QUESTION 1—"Will the tread give me the greatest traction and protection against skidding?"

ANSWER—Leading university tests show Firestone High Speed Tires stop your car 15% quicker than the best of other popular makes of tires.

QUESTION 2—"Are they built to give me the greatest blowout protection?"

ANSWER—Unequaled performance records for sixteen consecutive years prove that Gum-Dipping gives you the greatest blowout protection ever known.

QUESTION 3—"Without sacrificing these two important safety features will they give me longer mileage, thus making them the most economical tires I can buy?"

ANSWER—Thousands of car owners report unequaled mileage records—evidence of the longer wear and greater economy of Firestone High Speed Tires.

1 University tests show Firestone Tires stop cars 15% quicker
2 Gum-Dipped cords prevent greater blowout action. Gum-Dipping is not used in other tires
3 Wider tread gives more than 50% longer non-skid wear

LEISURE--It's Modern Conception

By JOHN MARTIN

The article below was delivered by John Martin, who tied for first honors with Hilliard Thomas, at the graduating exercises held on the Athletic Field the night of May 28.

The addresses of Hilliard Thomas and of Inez Smith will follow in the succeeding issues of the Herald.

Since the beginning of earliest civization, one of the prime motives of man's life has been to gain leisure. The desire for gold, the search for riches and worldly possessions, while it might seem an end in itself, is, in reality, only a medium by which the innate desire to make the struggle for existence unnecessary might be realized.

But, humanity cannot exist without working, and so, as long as there is civilization, this struggle must continue. This Utopian dream can never be entirely realized, but it can be approached, and it is becoming nearer to fulfillment than at any other time in history.

To the laborer of the past who plied his simple trade from sun up till sun down or who tilled the fields for hours each day in primitive fashion in order to supply his family with the necessities for a bare existence, leisure represented a thing to be hoped for but to be realized, only on or rare occasions. Modern methods have introduced machines to replace the hand of drudgery of yesterday. These mechanical marvels of efficiency and speed have been adapted for every industry by the inventive geniuses who have perfected them.

In their wake have come changes which are forcing us to rearrange our governmental and economic standards and whose effects on the living conditions of the people of the world are just beginning to be realized. Drastic measures are being undertaken to prevent the principles of Technocracy from undermining our established economic customs, but there is nothing that can be done to prevent these machines from taking the places eventually of the majority of our workers. Their recognized benefits are too numerous to justify destroying them for the old order of drudgery.

Instead, we must learn to adapt ourselves to meet the changes which their coming has instituted. Already, the working hours of the majority of our laborers have been drastically shortened in order to provide jobs for the hosts of unemployed men and women. The future holds in store for us still greater changes along these lines. Economists tell us that the next few decades will see the bringing about of a number of reforms, but that the most important among these will be decreased working hours for everyone. A few years ago —ten, twelve, and even fourteen hours was a common working day. Today the average is eight hours. In the near future it will be four and five.

These comparisons serve to point out just one thing—that instead of the incessant day in and day out struggle of an earlier generation to procure the necessities of life the machines whch are now in the process of introduction will enable the worker of the next decade to have additional benefits, to have them by working only a few hours a day, and, what is more important, they will afford him additional time for leisure activities.

This is not just a dream that our forefathers might have cherished. It is a logical fact that is already beginning to become an actuality. But, along with this new era of leisure will come problems, on whose solution will depend whether or not these added hours will be a source of enjoyment, a sourse of benefit and gain to ourselves and to the human race, or a detriment and hindrance to our well being. Whether we progress or whether we lag behind, both as individuals and as a nation will be determined by the use to which we put these added hours. Shall we make them hours of idleness or shall we put them to a constructive use? Shall we use this new found leisure to give reign to the lower impulses—perhaps to become the slaves of the commercialized and merchanized entertainment, or shall we use it for the creative upbuilding of our mental and physical faculties? It will not profit us in the least to gain a whole world of leisure if we disregard these opportunities for advancement, and engage ourselves in foolish amusements, empty efforts that aren't productive of anything worth while.

Rome was once a mighty empire. Under such leaders as Julius Caesar, its legions conquered and subordinated most of the known world. Its people prospered during these series of conquests and they made the Roman Empire a center of culture—seemingly impervious to destruction. The causes of the periods of stagnation and deterioration which led to its fall are directly traceable to the fact that its citizens, once mighty in warfare and in cultural pursuits, spent the years after they achieved greatness in idleness, and thus they allowed their cultural achievements to dissolve.

The ever increasing numbers of the inmates of our penal institutions might be a just cause for speculation as to whether or not the worthwhile qualities of the citizens of America are not showing a similar deterioration. A major problem of today, which will require solution, is how to direct the seizure activities of young men and young women so that their interest might follow sensible lines instead of leading them to become criminals and menaces to society.

It is the responsibility of those of us who will become citizens in the future to prepare ourselves so that they will know how to utilize this added leisure to advantage. It is the responsibility of the educational systems of our nation to make sure of this preparation among the students of today. More and more, during the last few years, have the people of our nation, and of the world, realized that the character, the inner nature of those of us living today and, even so, those who will live tomorrow are moulded and shaped during the hours of leisure. And so, more and more have the schools of our land patterned their courses and their curricula so as to take these recognized facts into consideration, so as to develop more fully the hitherto fore undeveloped side of the students life—to teach them how to invest their leisure.

And yet, even today, comparatively little is said about this needed education in our public schools system. The school is still recognized as a place in which to learn how to make a living, somewhat contrary to the teachings of that eminent Greek philosopher, Aristotle, who maintained that the purpose of education is preparation for the right sort of leisure. A government official has recently said that "when depression hit us, we found we were poverty-stricken in our ideas of what to do in leisure time." If this indictment be true, then certainly this theory of Aristotle's should receive a great deal of consideration before being discarded.

We must realize that an education which assumes that work is the chief thing in life will prove a failure, since the changes destined to appear in the new world will relegate work to a secondary position. Remembering this, we must prepare ourselves not for the world of today, or for the world in which our parents might have lived, but for the unknown world of twenty years hence. As one authority has said, "We must learn to be time fillers, and not time killers," so that when people give up over working, as they are already beginning to do, we will not perish of boredom or degenerate into an amusement seeking public, but will be able to enrich ourselves and those with whom we come in contact by making use of the opportunities that this increased leisure will present to all of us.

June Time

Oh, could I wave a magic wand
Across the earth today,
And catch and hold the month of June
In all her glorious sway.

This month so full of nature's best
The Queen of all the year;
I laugh and sing but must confess
It does not seem quite fair.

With all the dignity of her corn
And yellow sunflowers tall,
I talked with her this lovely morn
Within my garden wall.

I asked the Queen of the year
Just why she gave her best;
"'Tis June time," she replied;
The earth must wear her gayest dress.

—By Mrs. H. L. Heath.
